BPOs have to manage core operational processes across hundreds or thousands of different clients. To make this happen, they need a robust, scalable and flexible technology solution that meets the needs of the small startup all the way up to the billion-dollar global enterprise—and all points in between. Beyond meeting the needs of clients, BPO firms require a solution that meets THEIR needs, which often means a very standardized, easy-to-implement solution for smaller clients and a solution that offers deep configuration and customization capabilities to meet the requirements of large clients.

Recognized by Gartner as the world’s fastest-growing financial management software vendor, NetSuite gives finance and accounting outsourcing (FAO) providers a sophisticated and flexible platform that supports order-to-cash, procure-to-pay and record-to-report processes. Unlike some other solutions, NetSuite also has functionality for inventory management, project management, ecommerce and workflows that allow providers to provide services more efficiently and at a lower cost.

In short, BPO partners get a single, flexible, efficient solution for managing clients of all sizes and across all industries.

Support Clients of Any Size

Operating in a competitive industry, BPO providers need to be able to provide solutions that can accommodate clients of any size. With NetSuite, you can work with a pre-revenue startup to a multi-billion dollar public company. In fact, NetSuite BPO partners have already seen clients grow from an idea born in a garage to a multi-billion dollar private company without ever having to reimplement their ERP system.

Not only is this concept compelling to clients and their investors, but it also provides significant competitive differentiation. It means that you can keep clients for significantly longer than you can with other platforms, and introduce additional high value, high margin services as the client matures and has more sophisticated needs.

Handle Requirements from Accounting to Warehousing (and Everything in Between)

Most outsourcing providers start with a vision of providing outsourced accounting. Very quickly, they realize that the accounting process is tightly intertwined with the other client operations. Providers are left with the stark choice of using massively inefficient and error-prone manual processes to get data into the accounting system (or implementing multiple applications from multiple vendors).

Integrating one or two solutions is relatively straightforward regardless of the platform you choose, but using multiple point solutions from multiple providers quickly becomes a hairball of semi-integrated solutions to address requirements across processes such as inventory, project management, customer relationship management (CRM), ecommerce, expense reporting, procurement, workflows and dozens of other functions. This seriously degrades the provider's efficiency in an industry where efficiency equals profitability. That's because the provider has to manage and pay license fees to multiple vendors, train employees and clients on multiple systems and keep all the integrations working smoothly through upgrades of all of them on an ongoing basis.

NetSuite provides world class functionality in all aspects of a client's operations, allowing the client to easily enter data that flows into your outsourced process.

Need the services-based client to enter time against a project so you can bill the time on their behalf? It's easy in NetSuite.

Need a client that sells widgets to do an inventory count so you can assist with an adjustment? Just flip a switch when setting up NetSuite and inventory is enabled at no additional cost.

Have a nonprofit client that needs a website to solicit donations and offer a mug or t-shirt in return? NetSuite offers beautiful, easy to set up commerce sites that are a native extension of the platform.

NetSuite's integration capabilities are second to none and a large number of partners offer pre-built integrations that are certified "Built For NetSuite" via the SuiteApp Program.
